

MABEE-GERRER
MUSEUM OF ART

Arts Integration Educator Workshops

The Mabee-Gerrer Museum of Art is pleased to offer two arts integration workshops designed to introduce educators to the value and ease of using artworks and art projects as inspiration and departure points for teaching creative classroom lessons for language arts, science, and social studies.

Using artworks from the MGMoA collection as inspiration, the workshops will demonstrate how art can serve as an effective learning tool, meeting the needs of diverse learning styles.

The workshops are open to all educators including: teachers, administrators, home-school educators, professors, education students, docents, museum educators, and others.

For additional information, please contact Donna Merkt at 405-878-5605 or dmerkt@mgmoa.org

October 24
Art Smart!

with Donna Merkt

Learn how to facilitate observation-based discussions in the classroom or at the museum using Visual Thinking Strategies—a student-centered method that uses art to build the capacity to observe, think, listen, and communicate. This method is proven to help improve students' critical thinking skills, thereby assisting their learning abilities in all curriculum areas.

November 21

The Art of Journaling

with Donna Merkt & Dianne Moore

In this hands-on workshop, educators will explore the value of journaling and its application in all curriculum areas. Workshop attendees will learn to create several types of journals, be introduced to binding methods, and layering and transferring techniques to make the journals unique works of art.
